

ABSTRACT

[0059] The present invention provides a fusion implant for use between adjacent bony structures and related methods. The implant includes a body and at least one reinforcing member positionable within the body.